Assignment 4, reports

Group report

The group report should be similar to a presentation and should demonstrate the functionality of the web site you designed and implemented. Describe a walk-through to enable someone to test all the features of your web site. Indicate how to do the following in your report:

- Get to your web’s main page.
- Access the list of graduates and describe the different ways the list can be displayed (filters, ordering, or other.)
- See a graduate’s profile (the part of it publicly accessible.)
- Get to the store, view available items for sale, make purchases.
- Log in (either provide an existing account, or the way to create a new account.)
- Access the bulletin board, and how to add a message to the board.
- Which part of the profile can be modified and how. Also describe how to modify a profile item’s privacy setting.
- Add/remove friends to the user’s list of friends.
- Log out.

In addition, describe the following:

- Your approach for authentication
- A description of other security features you implemented
- Describe the group dynamics, including when the group meetings occurred and what was discussed at the meetings
• Any issues the group encountered (group dynamics, and/or part of the work you addressed as a group) and how you dealt with them.

• Remaining work: what else you would need to do to make the web site fully operational

Individual reports

Each member should turn in a short report describing:

• Your contribution to the group project

• Any issues encountered in your part of the work and how you dealt with them.

Reports due date

Turn in reports by e-mail by December 10, 11pm.
